

That what I am doing it is a first to ever happen in the Universe.

That following it, there will not be any such “gods”, relate this paradigm or state of being of the universe’s character to my initial understanding or inference of the reason for the existence of such “gods” which always seemed to me to be a unnatural contaminant which serves to bring no good intent or doing to us in any possible way.

It has always been my personal cognitive conception on the question on; whether there is in-fact an actual naturally belonging, stable existence of a sort of ubiquitous consciousness which is within the construction of the universe as an actual intrinsic feature which has been embedded within its form as a inherent characteristic of natural origin, that LOL MY FUCKING ASS!
